INTRODUCTION

Program Review Rotation & Processes

Kansas Wesleyan University's (KWU) program review rotation assures that each of its academic programs are evaluated at least once every five years. Twenty percent of KWU's Arts and Science academic programs will be evaluated annually. In this model, every academic program will be intensively evaluated within a five-year cycle.

The assessment approach of our programmatic effectiveness and sustainability and evidences areas of strength as well as areas for improvement with guided plans of action will assist in addressing programmatic challenges. Once every five years, all academic programs participate in a formal review process by which an academic department evaluates its progress toward meeting its student learning objectives, guided by the program mission, and demonstrates its role within the larger context of the university's mission and strategic plan. Actions should result from review. It is the responsibility of the department, in conjunction with the Provost, to carry through proposed actions. Although the formal process takes place only every five years, program review/assessment is a continuous process (yearly) of setting goals, measuring success, and improving programs on basis of that assessment.

- Submission of reviews to Provost and Assessment Director remains Sept. 1.
- Feedback to program chair from IARC/Curriculum Committee by Oct. 1.
- Program chairs meet with Provost, Academic Dean, Senior Director of Development/KWU Foundation Administrator, and one IARC Representative by Oct. 15 to discuss reviews.
- Provost provides written feedback about reviews to program chairs by Nov. 15.

As a result, academic programs engage in an annual program review process that is part of the Five-Year Program Review process in order to assess their progress towards completion of tasks written in their "Plan of Action."

Flexibility is a key feature of this process. The cycle will remain flexible to adjust to the dynamic nature of existing academic programs and emerging specialties that may lead to dramatic program modifications and/or development of new academic programs. Flexibility is also required to accommodate unexpected changes in division resource needs, curriculum modifications, and student demographics that require immediate and comprehensive responses, such as:

- Dramatic and unexpected changes in enrollment or attrition rates,
- Sudden or dramatic changes in placement rates or projects,
- Rapid technological changes or shifts in the industry requiring significant curricular changes and/or technology upgrades,
- Frequent or numerous changes in program staff, or
- Significant financial exigencies.

While flexibility is required in academic program review evaluation scheduling, we have provided a draft five-year program review rotation schedule, which is subject to change and located on pages 9 and 73.

TABLE TEMPLATES

In the enclosed Tables within this document, when you see the wording "Year 1," "Year 2," etc., replace with the actual academic year in which "Year 1" and "Year 2" represent (e.g., "Year 1" with "2015-2016"; "Year 2" with "2016-2017", etc.). All Tables are fillable and may be completed via computer.

SECTION I: MISSION AND PROGRAM STUDENT LEARNING OBJECTIVES

University Mission

Total Number of Graduate Majors Enrolled in Graduate Program Courses
Graduate programs will provide quantitative data for Table 7 based on information provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review regarding the total number of Graduate Majors enrolled in graduate program course work.

Total Number of Undergraduate Students Enrolled in Undergraduate Program Courses In Table 8, provide the total number of students enrolled in undergraduate program course work. Quantitative data for Table 6 will be based on information provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review.

Total Number of Graduate Students Enrolled in Graduate Program Courses
Graduate programs will provide quantitative data for $\underline{\text { Table } 9}$ based on information provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review regarding the total number of students enrolled in graduate program course work.

Total Number of Graduated Students in Undergraduate and Graduate Programs
In Table 10, provide the total number of students who have graduated from the undergraduate and/or graduate programs as provided by the Registrar Office for each academic term and year that is under review.

Total Number of Advisees per Program Faculty Member
In Table 11, provide the total number of student advisees (in undergraduate and graduate programs being advised by program faculty members) as provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review.

Student Recruitment

In Table 12, provide the number of student recruitment activities within the department including campus visits, contractual arrangements, and other activity types as collected by Admissions.

Unique Student Major Retention in Undergraduate Programs
In Table 13, provide the total number of unique student Majors [primary, secondary, \& tertiary] in undergraduate programs as provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review.

Unique Student Major Retention in Graduate Programs
In Table 14, provide the total number of unique student Majors in graduate programs as provided by the Registrar Office's $20^{\text {th }}$ day reports for each academic term and year that is under review.

Student Performance On:

SECTION III: CURRICULUM

Courses Offered

Check-Sheet for Student Four-Year Plan (CSSFYP) - Requirements for Major In Table 17, provide the 'CSSFYP - Requirements' for each programmatic major offered by the department.

Check-Sheet for Student Four-Year Plan (CSSFYP) - Suggested Sequence
In Table 18, provide the 'CSSFYP - Suggested Sequence' for each programmatic major offered by the department.

Curriculum Comparisons & Evaluation

Evaluate how the curriculum in the programs of the department compares to other similar programs elsewhere. The program should be compared with other programs in the region, particularly in the Kansas Independent College Association (KICA) or other small liberal arts colleges, and competing state universities, with professional standards for the discipline, accreditation standards for the discipline, curricular recommendations of national societies or professional organizations, and/or pedagogical research studies related to the program. Curriculum comparisons should target a minimum of three programs which are considered "competitors" for recruitment, and two programs which are "prototypes" or "exemplars" for which to set aspirations for growth and program improvement.

What are the curricular strengths and weaknesses of each program in the department based on program comparisons and assessment of student learning outcomes?

Utilize Table 19 (and the provided 'key') for each of the majors in your program, comparing courses and majors offered at KICA institutions and aspirant institutions.

Utilize Table 20 (and the provided 'key') for each of the majors in your program, comparing courses and majors offered at Kansas Regent Universities.

Current Staffing

In Table 21, provide full-time faculty teaching responsibilities (courses taught by course prefix, section letter, and course title, credit hours, contact hours, workload hours, and class size) semester by semester for each course offered by the department. Additionally, provide the full-time faculty member's committee service, work study supervision, equipment/lab maintenance, and other responsibilities of service to the institution by academic year.

Directions for Table 5

1. Fill in the courses that are offered by the program in the order that the students take them (four-year plans are a good source for this information.
2. Put an ' $X$ ' in the program SLO which the course meets (this could be more than one SLO).
3. Assessment in yearly program reviews should occur where mastery of the SLO is expected (highlight this course). You can assess across several courses but you are not expected to use every class to assess mastery of an SLO.
4. Highlight courses taught in the liberal studies program (it is useful to see if some of your program SLO's are feeding into the LS program).
5. You do not have to include courses that are in the program but are not under your department's control, i.e. a course that is in your program but offered by another department. This course will fall under the SLO's of that department (even if it meets some of your SLO's).
6. Use the 'Key" below (use provided highlights based on the provided conditions).

I = SLO introduced in the course.
$R=S L O$ reinforced during the course.
$\mathrm{M}=$ SLO mastered during the course.
Course is utilized to evaluate SLO in yearly program reviews (Form G).
Any of the SLOs could be met depending on the nature of the course (special topics, Wesleyan Journey classes, etc.).
Course is Part of the Liberal Studies Program

I. Identify the programmatic SLO that you are assessing this academic year.
II. Which of your departmental classes support this specific programmatic SLO? Within this individual class (or these classes), what are the course-specific SLOs that support the programmatic SLO. Identify these and explain.
III. What assessment tools (rubrics, portfolios, exams, etc.) did you use to assess the programmatic SLO that you have selected for this year? Attach these documents and any relevant data to this report. Evaluate the effectiveness of these tools. What worked well? What shortcomings have you identified? How will your approach potentially change in future years? Explain.
IV. Analyze the extent to which your department fulfilled the programmatic SLO that you have selected for this year (500-1000 words, double-spaced).
